1 Plaintiffs¹ respectfully submit this memorandum in support of their Motion for an Order 2 and Final Judgment approving this Class Action Settlement under Federal Rules of Civil 3 Procedure 23(c)(2) and (e). On February 17, 2012, the Court entered an order that appointed Co-4 Lead Class Counsel and Class Representatives, conditionally certified a settlement class under 5 Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23(b)(3), preliminarily approved the parties' Settlement 6 Agreement,² approved and directed a plan for giving notice to class members, and appointed the 7 Settlement Administrator. (Dkt. No. 47). That preliminary approval order also set deadlines for 8 objecting to the proposed Settlement and for requesting exclusion from the Settlement Class, as 9 well as other interim deadlines leading up to the final approval hearing, set for July 13, 2012.

10 In compliance with the Court's order, Defendant Apple, Inc. ("Apple") has caused notice 11 of this proposed Settlement to be sent directly to millions of Settlement Class members. The 12 parties and their counsel now respectfully request final approval of the proposed Settlement that 13 entirely resolves the claims brought by the named Class Representatives on behalf of themselves 14 and the Settlement Class, against Apple. This Motion for Final Approval is supported by the 15 Declarations of Ira P. Rothken; Stuart A. Davidson, Jennifer Sarnelli, Behram V. Parekh, and 16 William Audet, as well as other evidence, filed herewith.

17 As the record reveals, millions of Class members have already received free cases for their 18 iPhone 4s as a result of this litigation.³ Use of the case allows Class members to alleviate the 19 antenna reception problem that forms the basis for this lawsuit. To date, $75 million dollars 20

21 ¹ Named plaintiffs are: Stacey Milrot, Christopher DeRose, Steve Tietze, Jeffrey Rodgers, 22 Hung Michael Nguyen, Anthony Cologna, Joy Bearden, David Popik, Charles Fasano, Greg 23 Aguilera II, Thomas Gionis, Christopher Bensberg, David Purdue, Michael James Goodglick, 27 Magat.

28 ² All terms are given the same meaning as defined in the Parties' Settlement Agreement, which is attached as Exhibit 1 to the Notice of Motion.

³ Following the filing of Plaintiffs complaints, Apple help a press conference announcing that it would provide a free case to all iPhone 4 owners upon request. One of the case options was Apple's own "bumper" which is a case that wraps around the exterior of the iPhone 4.
Throughout this motion, Plaintiffs refer to Apple's free case offer as the "Bumper Program."

1 worth of cases have been provided to Class members. As a result of the proposed Settlement, the 2 Bumper Program has been extended for an additional 18 months, so that all iPhone 4 owners have 3 the opportunity to obtain a free bumper.⁴ The proposed Settlement also provides immediate 4 economic benefits to the Settlement Class members in the form of a $15.00 cash payment if a 5 Class member is not satisfied with the bumper solution or does not wish to compromise the 6 “design” integrity of iPhone 4.

7 The proposed Settlement occurred after considerable investigation, pretrial activities
 8 (including an MDL proceeding and coordination with parallel cases pending in Santa Clara 9 Superior Court) and a meaningful exchange of information. As the record also establishes, the 10 agreement was aggressively negotiated between the parties through arm’s length negotiations 11 under the supervision of by the Honorable Daniel Weinstein, a retired California judge, and 12 assisted by mediator Catherine Yanni, Esq. Furthermore, the proposed Settlement represents an 13 outcome for the Settlement Class that provides immediate benefits and removes the risk, delay, 14 and significant expense of further litigation. This is especially important in a case of this kind 15 because many Class members upgrade their phones after their two-year service contract expires.
 16 Thus, Plaintiffs were mindful that a quick resolution of the litigation would be in the best interests 17 of Class members. Finally, the parties have received minuscule objections to the proposed 18 Settlement from the over 27 million Settlement Class members (indeed, less than 0.000022% the 19 overall Class as of the date of this filing), underscoring the obvious fairness and adequacy of the 20 proposed Settlement recovery to Settlement Class Members.⁵ These factors, combined with 21 many others described below, support this Court’s final approval of the proposed Settlement.

22 I. BACKGROUND OF LITIGATION AND PROPOSED SETTLEMENT

23 Plaintiffs brought this consolidated nationwide class action⁶ pursuant to Federal Rules of 24 _____

 25 ⁴ Under the terms of the proposed Settlement, Class members can request a free bumper for their iPhone 4.

26 ⁵ The deadline for filing objections is June 15, 2012. Plaintiffs intend to file a supplemental submission after this date addressing any valid objections that have been made to the Settlement

27 ⁶ Eighteen (18) substantially similar cases were consolidated by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation in the Northern District of California pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1407 of into 28 a single action entitled, In re Apple iPhone 4 Products Liability Litigation, Master File No. 5:10-

1 Civil Procedure 23, on behalf of themselves and all others similarly situated as members of the 2 following class (the “Class”): all persons who purchased an iPhone 4 in the United States between 3 June 24, 2010 and the date of final approval. In these consolidated cases, Plaintiffs challenge
4 Defendants’ actions in connection with their marketing, advertising and sale of the Apple iPhone 5 4 cellular telephone (“iPhone 4”), which Plaintiffs alleged was defectively designed. As alleged 6 in the various complaints, and later in the Master Consolidated Complaint filed by the Plaintiffs,
7 Apple designed, manufactured, marketed, advertised, and warranted the iPhone 4 to consumers 8 nationwide. In conjunction with each sale, Apple marketed, advertised and warranted that each 9 iPhone 4 would work, at the very least, for the primary purpose a consumer buys a cellular phone 10 – namely, making and receiving telephone calls. See Master Consolidated Complaint [Dkt. No.
11 14].

12 Plaintiffs allege that Apple knew or should have known that the iPhone 4 was defective in 13 design and/or manufacture. More specifically, Plaintiffs allege that the iPhone 4 contains a defect 14 that results in the attenuation of cellular reception when handling the phone as a reasonable, 15 ordinary person would handle a mobile telephone while making phone calls, browsing the 16 Internet, sending text messages, or utilizing other iPhone 4 features, and in the same manner as 17 depicted in numerous Apple advertisements. In short, Plaintiffs allege that when a Class member 18 uses an iPhone 4 as a normal person would, reception significantly degrades.

19 On this basis, Plaintiffs alleged 21 causes of action in their Master Consolidated Complaint 20 [Dkt. No. 14], including violations of various common laws, California consumer protection laws, 21 and violation of the consumer protection statutes of other states.

22 Procedural History of the Federal Actions and the Parallel California Actions

23 On June 25, 2010, the first of a number of class action complaints were filed in this Court 24 arising out of the problems associated with the iPhone 4’s telephone reception. All cases pending 25 in this Court were ‘related over’ by order of this Court. On September 30, 2010, the Judicial 26

27 md-02188-RMW on November 9, 2010 with two other cases added subsequently. On February 7, 28 2011, Plaintiffs filed a Master Consolidated Complaint in the consolidated action. [Dkt. No. 14].

1 Panel on Multidistrict Litigation (“MDL”) heard Apple’s Motion for MDL consolidation and 2 transfer to the Northern District of California of the then pending 18 similar class actions. On 3 October 8, 2010, the MDL panel issued its orders consolidating all actions and transferring them to 4 this Court. On January 14, 2011, this Court signed Pretrial Order No. 1, consolidating the federal 5 cases into a single action entitled, In re Apple iPhone 4 Products Liability Litigation, Case No.
6 5:10-md-02188-RMW (“Federal Action”), appointing Plaintiffs’ Interim Co-Lead Counsel,⁷ and 7 ordering the filing of a Master Consolidated Complaint to administratively govern the Federal 8 Action. In compliance with this Order on February 7, 2011, the federal Plaintiffs filed a Master 9 Consolidated Class Action Complaint.

10 Concurrently, four California state actions were also consolidated by the California Judicial 11 Panel and transferred to the Superior Court of Santa Clara. The actions were subsequently 12 assigned to one judge and, by agreement of the parties and Court order, William M. Audet of 13 Audet & Partners, LLP., was appointed as Liaison counsel for the plaintiffs in the consolidated 14 state action. The State Court order also included a provision that coordinated the state actions 15 with the federal MDL, including any mediation efforts.

16 Procedural History of the Mediation

17 After an initial exchange of information, on February 15, 2011, Plaintiffs and Apple agreed 18 to mediate the issues set forth in the Master Consolidated Complaint before the Honorable Daniel 19 Weinstein (Ret.) and Catherine Yanni, Esq. of JAMS. As a condition of the proposed mediation, 20 Apple was obligated to provide Co-Lead Counsel critical information regarding the core issues of 21 the case, including documents relating to alleged causation and the design of the iPhone 4 22 antenna. The parties proceeded with settlement discussions, which included multiple rounds of 23 in-person mediation along with numerous telephonic calls in between such in-person mediation 24 sessions. On June 23, 2011, July 13, 2011 and August 4, 2011, the parties (represented by Co-25 Lead Counsel and state liaison counsel for the Plaintiffs) and Apple and its counsel, met for full

1 day, contentious meditation sessions. Only after reaching an agreement on all the material terms 2 of the proposed Settlement did the parties engage in an arms-length discussion, again with the 3 assistance of the mediators, to seek to reach agreement on the payment of attorneys' fees. On 4 January 24, 2012, the parties again met in-person with the mediators to draft and finalize the 5 Settlement Agreement and exhibits. The Settlement Agreement was finalized late that evening
6 and was previously filed with the Court. [Dkt. No. 45-1]

7 Summary of the Proposed Settlement

8 The parties' Settlement Agreement proposes certification of a Settlement Class consisting 9 of:

10 All United States residents who are or were the original owners of an iPhone 4.
11 The Settlement Class excludes Apple; any entity in which Apple has a controlling 12 interest; Apple's directors, officers, and employees; and Apple's legal representatives, successors, and assigns.⁸

13 The parties estimate that there are well over twenty-seven (27) million members of the Settlement 14 Class.

15 Individual Class Member Benefits

16 As the record establishes, Plaintiffs' lawsuits were a catalyst for Apple's initiation of its 17 Bumper Program, pursuant to which approximately 2.61 million protective bumpers valued at 18 $29 each (i.e., over $75 million in products) were provided to Class members for their iPhone 4s 19 between July 2010 and April 2012. The proposed Settlement provides, as more fully set forth in 20 the Settlement Agreement, substantial benefits to Settlement Class, including, both economic and 21 injunctive relief. Specifically, the proposed Settlement provides:

22 i. All 27 million Class members are eligible to seek a cash payment of $15.00.
23 Apple has agreed to pay all eligible claimants $15.00 cash with no limit.

24 ii. Apple is extending its Bumper Program, and will continue to offer Class 25 members the protective bumper for their iPhone 4 for at least 18 months subsequent to the 26

27 ⁸ The Court provisionally certified the class for all original owners of an iPhone4 as of 28 February 17, 2012. Dkt No. 47, paragraph 3.

1 discontinuation of the iPhone 4 as described at <http://support.apple.com/kb/HT4389>. The 2 proposed Settlement included a narrow release of claims by Class members, which ensured that 3 any of Class members' unrelated claims would not be waived. In addition, Apple has agreed to 4 pay for notice, the claims administration costs and expenses, and to not oppose separately
5 negotiated attorneys' fees and expense reimbursement to Class Counsel, as awarded by the court, 6 up to $5.9 million.⁹

7 II. THE PARTIES HAVE SATISFIED THEIR NOTICE OBLIGATIONS UNDER 8 THE PRELIMINARY APPROVAL ORDER

9 On February 17, 2012, upon application of the parties, this Court preliminarily approved 10 the proposed Settlement and directed the parties to issue notice to the Class. (Dkt. No. 47). The 11 Order provides that "proposed settlement set forth in the Agreement is hereby preliminarily 12 approved as being fair, reasonable, and adequate such that notice thereof should be given to 13 members of the Settlement Class." (Dkt. No. 47 at ¶ 2), and defined the Settlement Class which 14 has not been altered for this final approval motion. The Order also appointed the Co-Lead 15 Counsel as Class Counsel and appointed Plaintiffs Stacey Milrot, Christopher DeRose, Steve 16 Tietze, Jeffrey Rodgers, Hung Michael Nguyen, Anthony Cologna, Joy Bearden, David Popik, 17 Charles Fasano, Greg Aguilera II, Thomas Gionis, Christopher Bensberg, David Purdue, Michael 18 James Goodglick, Karen Young, Joshua Gilson, Brandon Ellison Reininger, Trevor Antunez, 19 Jessica Lares, Jaywill Sands, Bryan Colver, Jaclyn Badolato, Nicole Stankovitz, Vinny Curbelo, 20 Kevin McCaffrey, James Blackwell, and Jethro Magat to serve as Class Representatives. (Dkt.
21 No. 47 at ¶ 4). The Order also approved the Claim Forms, the Notice of Pendency and Proposed 22 Settlement of Class Action, and the Summary Notice of Settlement, finding that "the forms of 23 notice to the Settlement Class regarding the pendency of the Action and of this settlement and 24 Class Counsel's fee and expense application and application for a stipend set forth above, and the 25 methods of dissemination to members of the Settlement Class in accordance with the terms of this 26 Order, constitute the best notice practicable under the circumstances and constitute valid, due, and

27 ⁹ Plaintiffs seek the Court's approval of attorneys' fees and expenses in a separate motion 28 filed simultaneously.

1 sufficient notice to all members of the Settlement Class, complying fully with the requirements of 2 Rule 23(c)(2)(B) and the United States Constitution.” Id. at ¶10.

3 The required notice provisions were successfully carried out. In particular:

- 4 1. Posting the above noted documents on the Settlement Website, 5 www.iPhone4settlement.com (Order ¶ 7).
- 6 2. Publication by Apple of the Summary Notice once in USA Today and once in 7 Macworld with such notices being no smaller than ¼ page size. (Order ¶ 9).
- 8 3. Emailing each Class Member for whom Apple has an email address in its 9 warranty registration database an electronic copy of the Summary Notice. (Order ¶ 8).

10 An official settlement Website, www.iPhone4settlement.com, which posted the Long-Form 11 Notice and other settlement documents, became operational on March 28, 2012. Declaration of 12 Claims Administrator Jeffrey Gyomber (“Gyomber Decl.”)¹⁰ ¶7 . Publication notice appeared in 13 the daily issue of the national edition of USA Today on April 2, 2012, and in the May, 2012 14 edition of Macworld. See Declaration of Sissie Twiggs in Support of Final Approval. Between 15 March 30, 2012 and April 13, 2012, email notices were disseminated directly to more than 15.7
16 million Class Members. Gyomber Dec., ¶8. Each of the above notices was in the form approved 17 by the Court.

18 Under the Court’s preliminary approval order, and as stated in the class notices, Class 19 members have until June 15, 2012 to request exclusion from the proposed Settlement class by 20 sending such request by first class mail, to Robbins Geller Rudman & Dowd LLP, Attn: Rick 21 Nelson, Class Member Relations, 655 West Broadway, Suite 1900, San Diego, CA 92101.

22 Class members also have until June 15, 2012, to object to the proposed Settlement. As of 23 this filing, of the approximately 27 million Class members who were provided direct and/or 24 publication notice,¹¹ only 8 have objected to the settlement as of the date of this brief. (A 25 discussion of the objections will be presented by June 29, 2012 as outlined in the Court’s order).

26 ¹⁰ On June 1, 2012, Apple filed Gyomber Decl. with the Court.

27 ¹¹ Many households and businesses have more than one iPhone 4 device registered to a compared to the total number of iPhone 4s sold.

III. THE PROPOSED SETTLEMENT SHOULD BE APPROVEDA. THE STANDARDS FOR JUDICIAL APPROVAL OF CLASS ACTION SETTLEMENTS

The law favors voluntary settlement of disputes, particularly in class actions and other complex cases where substantial resources can be conserved by avoiding the time, cost, and rigors of formal litigation. Officers for Justice v. Civil Serv. Comm'n, 688 F.2d 615, 625 (9th Cir. 1982); Class Plaintiffs v. City of Seattle, 955 F.2d 1268, 1276 (9th Cir. 1992); Van Bronkhorst v. Safeco Corp., 529 F.2d 943, 950 (C.A. Wash. 9th Cir. 1976); Newberg on Class Actions § 11.41 (Alba Conte & Herbert B. Newberg eds., 4th ed. 2002) (and cases cited). Indeed, settlement of complex cases contributes greatly to the efficient utilization of scarce judicial resources and achieves the speedy resolution of justice, for “[a] just result is often no more than an arbitrary point between competing notions of reasonableness.” In re Corrugated Container Anti-Trust Litig. II, 659 F.2d 1322, 1325 (5th Cir. 1981). Pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23(e), “[A] class action shall not be dismissed or compromised without the approval of the Court. . . .” District courts are afforded broad discretion in determining whether to approve a proposed class action settlement. Indeed, “evaluation of [a] proposed settlement in this type of litigation . . . requires an amalgam of delicate balancing, gross approximations and rough justice,” and the trial court’s ruling on the adequacy of a proposed compromise is given great deference. City of Detroit v. Grinnell Corp., 356 F. Supp. 1380, 1385 (S.D.N.Y. 1972), aff’d in part and rev’d in part on other grounds, 495 F.2d 448 (2d Cir. 1974). Although the court possesses “broad discretion” in determining that a proposed class action settlement is fair, the court’s role “must be limited to the extent necessary to reach a reasoned judgment that the agreement is not the product of fraud or overreaching by, or collusion between, the negotiating parties, and that the settlement, taken as a whole, is fair, reasonable and adequate to all concerned.” Officers for Justice, 688 F.2d at 625 (internal quotation marks and citation omitted). Accordingly, the court should give due regard to what is otherwise a “private consensual agreement” between the parties. See id.; Church v. Consolidated Freightways, Inc., Nos. C-91-4168-DLJ, C-90-2290-DLJ, 1993 WL 149840, at *2 (N.D. Cal. May 3, 1993); In re Wash. Pub. Power Supply Sys. Sec. Litig., 720 F. Supp. 1379, 1387 (D. Ariz. 1989), aff’d sub nom., Class Plaintiffs v. City of Seattle, 955 F.2d

1 1268 (9th Cir. 1992) ; Manual for Complex Litigation, Fourth, § 21.61 at 309 (“The judicial role
2 in reviewing a proposed settlement is critical, but limited to approving the proposed settlement, 3 disapproving it, or imposing conditions on it. The judge cannot rewrite the agreement.”). A 4 court’s approval of a class action settlement will only be reversed for a clear abuse of discretion.
5 See Officers for Justice, 688 F.2d at 626 (“[W]e reverse only upon a strong showing that the 6 district court’s decision was a clear abuse of discretion”); City of Seattle, 955 F.2d at 1276; 7 Linney v. Cellular Alaska P’ship, 151 F.3d 1234, 1238 (9th Cir. 1998).

8 On a motion for final approval of a class action settlement, a court’s inquiry is whether the 9 settlement is “fair, adequate and reasonable.” Fed. R. Civ. Pro. 23(e)(1)(C); Officers for Justice, 10 688 F.2d at 625. A settlement is fair, adequate and reasonable, and therefore merits final 11 approval, when “the interests of the class are better served by the settlement than by further 12 litigation.” Manual for Complex Litigation, Fourth, § 21.6 at 309.

13 In conducting this analysis, however, the district court should not require the proponents 14 of a settlement to stage a mini-trial on the merits, the very event that settlement aims to preclude.
15 See In re Armored Car Anti-Trust Litig., 472 F. Supp. 1357, 1367 (N.D. Ga. 1979), aff’d in part 16 and rev’d in part on other grounds, 645 F.2d 488 (5th Cir. 1981). Moreover, the court should not 17 seek to substitute its judgment of what is fair for that reached by the parties in their arm’s-length 18 negotiations. See 7B Charles Alan Wright, et. al., Federal Practice & Procedure § 1797.5 (3d 19 ed. 2012); see also Manual for Complex Litigation, Fourth, § 21.61 at 309. Where adversarial 20 negotiation by capable counsel is evident, it is presumed that the resulting class settlement is fair.
21 See, e.g., Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Visa U.S.A., Inc., 396 F.3d 96, 116 (2d Cir. 2005), cert. denied 22 sub nom., Leonardo's Pizza by the Slice, Inc. v. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc., 544 U.S. 1044, 125 S. Ct.
23 2277 (2005) (a “presumption of fairness, adequacy, and reasonableness may attach to a class 24 settlement reached in arm's-length negotiations between experienced, capable counsel after 25 meaningful discovery”) (quoting Manual for Complex Litigation, Third § 30.42 (1995)); Lucas v.
26 Kmart Corp., 234 F.R.D. 688, 695 (D. Colo. 2006); Newberg on Class Actions § 11.41 (Alba 27 Conte & Herbert B. Newberg eds., 4th ed. 2002).

1 Finally, in evaluating a settlement, the court is not to reach the merits of the case or to 2 form conclusions about the underlying questions of law or fact. Officers for Justice, 688 F.2d at 3 625. The Ninth Circuit has established the following factors to consider in determining whether a 4 settlement is fair, reasonable and adequate: (1) the strength of the plaintiffs' case; (2) the risk, 5 expense, complexity, and likely duration of further litigation; (3) the risk of maintaining class 6 action status throughout the trial; (4) the amount offered in settlement [presumably in comparison 7 to comparable cases]; (5) the extent of discovery completed and the stage of the proceedings; (6) 8 the experience and views of counsel; (7) the presence of a governmental participant; and (8) the 9 reaction of class members to the proposed settlement. Churchhill Village, L.L.C v. General Elec., 10 361 F.3d 566, 575 (9th Cir. 2004); Officers for Justice, 688 F.2d 625 (numbers added); In re
 11 Omnivision Techs., Inc., 559 F. Supp. 2d 1036, 1040-41 (N.D. Cal. 2008). Judge Walker in this 12 District, relying upon the Manual for Complex Litigation, Fourth § 21.6, has also proposed as a 13 ninth factor "the procedure by which the settlement was arrived at." In re Portal Software, Inc.
 14 Sec. Litig., No. C-03-5138 VRW, 2007 WL 4171201, at *3 (N.D. Cal. Nov. 26, 2007).

15 Under these standards, the proposed Settlement is fair, reasonable and adequate.

16 1. The Strength of Plaintiffs' Case

17 "An important consideration in judging the reasonableness of a settlement is the strength 18 of the plaintiffs' case on the merits balanced against the amount offered in the settlement." 5 19 Moore's Federal Practice § 23.85[2][b] (Matthew Bender 3d. ed.). However, in balancing these 20 factors, "a proposed settlement is not to be judged against a speculative measure of what might 21 have been awarded in a judgment in favor of the class." Id. As noted by the Ninth Circuit:

22 [T]he settlement or fairness hearing is not to be turned into a trial or rehearsal for 23 trial on the merits. Neither the trial court nor [the Court of Appeals] is to reach any 24 ultimate conclusions on the contested issues of fact and law which underlie the 25 merits of the dispute, for it is the very uncertainty of outcome in litigation and avoidance of wastefulness and expensive litigation that induce consensual settlements.

26 Officers for Justice, 688 F.2d at 625.

27 Although Plaintiffs believe strongly in the underlying merits of their case, consumer 28

1 product class action cases are difficult to prove on a classwide basis. Specifically, Plaintiffs argue 2 that a common design defect results in the iPhone 4 exhibiting extensive signal attenuation and 3 failure problems. Apple, however, would counter that this problem is a person by person issue, 4 not suitable for class wide determination. Furthermore, Apple would argue that Plaintiffs could 5 not produce evidence regarding whether the failure was attributed to the iPhone 4's design or 6 poor signal quality because of the iPhone 4's service provider. While Plaintiffs would intend to 7 show that a common design defect is adequate to prove a violation of California law, they would 8 face an uphill battle in so doing. There are clear uncertainties surrounding Plaintiffs' ability to 9 prove their claims given the unpredictability of a lengthy and complex jury trial. Given the nature 10 of the claims, this factor weighs in favor of proposed Settlement.

11 2. The Risk, Expense, Complexity, and Likely Duration of Further Litigation

12 Another relevant factor in the present matter is the risk of continued litigation balanced 13 against the certainty and immediacy of recovery from the proposed Settlement. See In re Mego 14 Fin. Corp. Sec. Litig., 213 F.3d 454, 458 (9th Cir. 2000). "In most situations, unless the 15 settlement is clearly inadequate, its acceptance and approval are preferable to lengthy and 16 expensive litigation with uncertain results." Newberg on Class Actions § 11.50 (Alba Conte & 17 Herbert B. Newberg eds. 4th ed. 2002). As observed in Oppenlander v. Standard Oil Co. (Ind.), 18 64 F.R.D. 597 (D. Colo. 1974)

19 The Court shall consider the vagaries of litigation and compare the significance of 20 immediate recovery by way of the compromise to the mere possibility of relief in 21 the future, after protracted and expensive litigation. In this respect, "It has been held proper to take the bird in hand instead of a prospective flock in the bush."

22 64 F.R.D. at 624.

23 Hence, the Court must balance the risks of continued litigation against a certain and 24 immediate recovery for the Plaintiff Class. There are significant risks in continued litigation as 25 outlined above. There is no guarantee of class certification relating to a myriad of separate 26 experiences with the iPhone 4. And, if a class was certified there is no guarantee that Plaintiffs 27 would prevail at trial or what damages they would expect to receive from a jury.

1 Although Co-Lead Counsel believes that the case is meritorious, their collective (and 2 considerable) class action experience has taught them how the outcome of a trial is extremely 3 uncertain. Clearly, any complex litigation is difficult. Even if Plaintiffs were to prevail at trial, 4 risks to the Class remain. For example, in In re Apple Computer Sec. Litig., No. C-84-20148(A)- 5 JW, 1991 WL 238298 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 6, 1991), a case litigated and tried in this District, the jury 6 rendered a verdict for plaintiffs after an extended trial, but later, the trial court overturned the 7 verdict, entering judgment n.o.v. for the individual defendants, and ordered a new trial with 8 respect to the corporate defendant. In another case in the Middle District of Florida, the jury 9 returned a verdict of approximately $81 million in favor of the class. The verdict was reversed on 10 appeal, leaving the class with nothing. Robbins v. Koger Props, Inc., 116 F.3d 1441 (11th Cir.
11 1997); see also Backman v. Polaroid Corp., 910 F.2d 10 (1st Cir. 1990) (the class won a large 12 jury verdict and a motion for j.n.o.v. was denied, but on appeal the judgment was reversed and the 13 case dismissed); State of W. Va. v. Chas. Pfizer & Co., 314 F. Supp. 710, 743-44 (D.C.N.Y. 1970) 14 (“[i]t is known from past experience that no matter how confident one may be of the outcome of 15 litigation, such confidence is often misplaced”), aff’d, 440 F.2d 1079 (2d Cir. 1971); Berkey
16 Photo, Inc. v. Eastman Kodak Co., 603 F.2d 263 (2d Cir. 1979) (reversing $87 million judgment 17 after trial).

18 Furthermore, mobile telephones are subject to substantial turnover. Most service 19 providers require consumers to sign a two-year contract with the purchase of a mobile phone at a 20 promotional price. Frequently, after a two-year contract has expired consumers will upgrade their 21 current model mobile telephone to obtain the latest technological features. The available features 22 on mobile telephones are rapidly changing providing consumers with a larger array of choices. In 23 fact, since the release of the iPhone 4, Apple has release a new model, the iPhone 4S and an 24 iPhone 5 is rumored to be in the making. This proposed Settlement gives Class members a 25 meaningful benefit during the time when they actually use their iPhone 4s.

26 Against all of these uncertainties, an immediate and certain cure and compensation 27 program, as set up here, while most of the iPhone 4s are still in use, is a better option than 28

1 continuing litigation. See also Chiaramonte v. Pitney Bowes, Inc., No. 06 CV 1507 JM (NLS), 2 2008 WL 510765, at *2 (S.D. Cal. Feb. 25, 2008).

3 3. The Risk of Maintaining Class Action Status

4 Although Plaintiffs are confident in their abilities to prosecute and manage this case, there 5 is significant risk that the case would not survive a contested class certification proceeding. For 6 example, while Plaintiffs contend that common issues of a uniform design defect predominate, 7 Apple argues that any alleged signal attenuation issues result from the service provided by the 8 cellular carriers. Further, Apple would argue that Plaintiffs could not prove that each Class 9 member held the iPhone 4 in the same manner, therefore, Apple would argue that individual 10 issues predominate and class certification should fail. While Plaintiffs contend that they would 11 ultimately prevail on class certification, Plaintiffs did face significant risks in obtaining and 12 maintain class certification through trial.

13 4. The Amount Offered in Proposed Settlement

14 Plaintiffs believe that the recovery obtained consisting of monetary amounts for 15 consumers and continuation of the iPhone 4 Bumper Program constitutes a substantial recovery 16 for the class. Furthermore, after class action complaints were filed, Apple established its free 17 Bumper Program. As a direct result of this litigation, over 2.61 million Class members have 18 already received a free bumper (each with a retail value of $29). This portion of the relief alone 19 is valued at over $75 million.

20 While it is not designed to provide the fullest possible recovery, the Ninth Circuit has 21 noted, “the very essence of a settlement is compromise, a yielding of absolutes and an abandoning 22 of highest hopes.” Linney, 151 F.3d at 1242 (citation and internal quotation marks omitted). As 23 such, there is no suggestion that for a settlement to be approved, the settlement amount has to 24 consist of a full and complete recovery of all claims.

25 Here, the proposed Settlement consists of two types of relief. First and foremost, the 26 proposed Settlement provides simple direct relief in the form of a $15.00 cash award. The second 27 provides for a continuation of the Bumper Program, in which class members may obtain a free 28

1 protective bumper for their iPhone 4. Accordingly, the proposed Settlement provides customers 2 with a direct remedy for the allegations of the complaint.

3 5. The Extent of Discovery Completed, and the Stage of the Proceedings

4 In determining the adequacy of the parties' knowledge of the case, it may be relevant to 5 consider the extent of discovery. A settlement following sufficient discovery and genuine arms-
6 length negotiation is presumed fair. See City P'ship Co. v. Atlantic Acquisition Ltd. P'ship, 100
7 F.3d 1041, 1043 (1st Cir. 1996). Here, Plaintiffs reviewed a significant number of confidential 8 documents and disclosures from Apple relating to the claims asserted, including research and 9 testing data. Further, the Co-Lead Counsel and other Plaintiffs counsel obtained data directly 10 from hundreds of Class members regarding their individual experiences with the iPhone 4. Co-11 Lead Counsel also retained an expert consultant to provide an analyses of the iPhone 4 and the 12 alleged signal attenuation issues. Thus, Plaintiffs' litigation and mediation of this case was 13 informed by a thorough review of these non-public documents and based on Class member 14 interviews and expert analyses. Further, by the time the proposed Settlement was reached, the 15 litigation had proceeded to a point in which both Plaintiffs and Defendant "ha[d] a clear view of 16 the strengths and weaknesses of their cases." In re Warner Commc'ns Sec. Litig., 618 F. Supp.
17 735, 745 (S.D.N.Y. 1985) aff'd, 798 F.2d 35 (2d Cir. 1986). Nonetheless, Plaintiffs made their 18 agreement to settle subject to further discovery. (Plaintiffs report that the discovery obtained 19 further confirmed that the proposed Settlement was fair, reasonable and adequate.)

20 6. The Experience and Views of Counsel

21 The Settlement Agreement was presented to the Court after extensive negotiations among 22 the settling parties. In reviewing the opinions of counsel, "great weight" is accorded to the 23 recommendation of the attorneys. In re PaineWebber Ltd. P'ships Litig., 171 F.R.D. 104, 125 24 (S.D.N.Y. 1997). They are the ones who are most closely acquainted with the facts of the 25 underlying litigation. Id. "Parties represented by competent counsel are better positioned than 26 courts to produce a settlement that fairly reflects each party's expected outcome in the litigation." 27 In re Pacific. Enters. Sec. Litig., 47 F.3d 373, 378 (9th Cir. 1995). Thus, "the trial judge, absent 28

1 fraud, collusion, or the like, should be hesitant to substitute its own judgment for that of counsel.”
2 Cotton v. Hinton, 559 F.2d 1326, 1330 (5th Cir. 1977); Hanrahan v. Britt, 174 F.R.D. 356, 366-
3 68 (E.D. Pa. 1997) (presumption of correctness applies to a class action settlement reached in 4 arms’-length negotiations between experienced, capable counsel after meaningful discovery) 5 (citing Manual for Complex Litigation, Second, § 30.41 (1985), and Ratner v. Bennett, No. 92-6 4701, 1996 WL 243645, at *5 (E.D. Pa. May 8, 1996)).

7 Here, Plaintiffs’ Co-Lead Counsel was in the thick of the litigation and understood the 8 complex weighing of risks and delay inherent in any settlement. It was Co-Lead Counsel’s 9 conclusion that providing an opportunity for approximately 27 million people to obtain a cash 10 award and the extension of the Bumper Program could likely be the best result that might be 11 obtained even after several years of litigation. Thus, based on their years of class action 12 experience, Co-Lead Counsel, after consultation with their clients, agreed to the proposed 13 Settlement and strongly recommend its approval by this Court.

14 7. The Presence of a Governmental Participant

15 This litigation did not have a governmental participant. Yet, Plaintiffs obtained an 16 excellent result without any ‘assistance’ by any governmental agency.

17 8. The Reaction of the Class Members to the Proposed Settlement

18 “The reactions of the members of a class to a proposed settlement is a proper 19 consideration for the trial court.” 5 Moore’s Fed. Practice § 23.85[2][d]. Class Representative’s 20 opinion of the proposed Settlement are especially important as “[t]he representatives’ views may 21 be important in shaping the agreement and will usually be presented at the fairness hearing; they 22 may be entitled to special weight because the representatives may have a better understanding of 23 the case than most members of the class.” Manual for Complex Litigation, Third, § 30.44 (1995).

24 a. Class Representative Reaction

25 The Class Representatives are strongly in support of the proposed Settlement. Each of 26 these Class Representatives and their attorneys have an extensive understanding of the merits of 27 this settlement having participated extensively in the strategy, formulation, filing, litigation and 28

1 negotiation process. Each of these Class Representatives consider many of the same issues raised 2 by objectors during the settlement process but ultimately came to the conclusion that the 3 settlement was in the best interest of the class.

4 b. Objecting Class Members

5 The Court should carefully weigh the number and nature of objections while keeping in 6 mind that a proposed Settlement can be fair even if a large number of class members oppose it.
7 Reed v. Gen. Motors Corp., 703 F.2d 170, 174 (5th Cir. 1983). The Ninth Circuit has approved 8 settlements over objections if the settlement otherwise meets the fairness requirements. See, e.g., 9 Churchill Village, 361 F.3d at 577 (500 opt-outs and 45 objections out of approximately 90,000
10 notified class members); In re Mego Fin. Sec. Litig., 213 F.3d 454 (9th Cir. 2000) (one objection 11 out of a potential class of 5400); Marshall v. Holiday Magic, Inc., 550 F.2d 1173, 1178 (9th Cir.
12 1977) (one percent of the class disapproved).

13 The deadline for objections of June 15, 2012 has not yet arrived. (Plaintiffs note that, as 14 of the date of this filing, only 8 persons have filed and served objections, less than .00003% of the 15 Settlement Class) A full response to any valid objection will be dealt with in a separate brief, 16 filed on or before June 29, 2012.

1 9. The Procedure By Which the Proposed Settlement was Arrived Supports the Proposed Settlement

2 As noted by the Ninth Circuit, the eight listed factors is “by no means an exhaustive list of 3 relevant considerations.” Officers for Justice, 688 F.2d at 625. As such, in conformance with the 4 Manual for Complex Litigation, Fourth, §21.6, Courts have indicated that the procedure by which 5 the settlement was arrived is an important fact in determining whether a settlement should be 6 approved. The parties engaged in several day-long mediations. These mediations were highly 7 contentious. The mediation sessions were led by not one, but two, well-respected mediators – the 8 Honorable Daniel Weinstein (Ret.) and Cathy Yanni, President of the Academy of Court-9 Appointed Masters. Judge Weinstein details the nature of the mediation notes that in his opinion 10 “this settlement is fair, reasonable, and adequate for the proposed class” based upon his 11 conclusion that the parties negotiated vigorously and at arm’s length. See Declaration of 12 Honorable Daniel Weinstein (“Weinstein Decl.”) attached. Similar testimony is found in each of 13 the Co-Lead Counsel’s contemporaneously filed declarations.

14 For all of the above reasons, Final Approval of the proposed Settlement should be granted.

15 B. THE COURT SHOULD CERTIFY THE SETTLEMENT CLASS

16 To complete the formal settlement approval process, the Court must satisfy itself that the 17 requirements of Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23 are met. Every requirement of Rule 23 is 18 satisfied with respect to this proposed Settlement class. This Court, in its preliminary-approval 19 order, held that:

20 WHEREAS, this Court preliminarily finds, for the purposes of settlement only, 21 that the class alleged in the Action meets all the prerequisites of Federal Rules of 22 Civil Procedure Rule 23 for class certification, including numerosity, 23 commonality, typicality, ascertainability, predominance of common issues, superiority, and that the Class Representatives and Class Counsel are adequate representatives of the Settlement Class

24 Plaintiffs recount their previous showing and demonstrate that this Court should issue a final 25 order approving certification of the Settlement Class.

26 1. The Numerosity Requirement Is Met

27 Rule 23(a)(1) allows a class action to be maintained if “joinder of all members is 28 impracticable” owing, in primary part, to the large number of people in the proposed class. Fed.

1 R. Civ. P. 23(a)(1); see also Hanlon v. Chrysler Corp., 150 F.3d 1011, 1019 (9th Cir. 1998).
2 Generally, the numerosity requirement is satisfied when the class comprises 40 or more members.
3 Celano v. Marriott Int'l, Inc., 242 F.R.D. 544, 549 (N.D. Cal. 2007). In this case, the parties 4 estimate that the Settlement Class includes over 27 million persons residing throughout the 5 United States. Size renders joinder impracticable here and, Plaintiffs believe, satisfies the 6 numerosity requirement. See Hanlon, 150 F.3d at 1019.

7 2. The Commonality Requirement is Met

8 Rule 23(a)(2) allows a class action to be maintained if “there are questions of law or fact 9 common to the class.” “The existence of shared legal issues with divergent factual predicates is 10 sufficient, as is a common core of salient facts coupled with disparate legal remedies within the 11 class.” Hanlon, 150 F.3d at 1019. Here, all Settlement Class members are Apple iPhone 4 12 owners.

13 Plaintiffs allege the same legal theories for all proposed Class members:

- 14 a) Whether Apple advertised and sold the iPhone 4 by promoting the product’s speed 15 and performance, when in fact, the actual performance was materially different, 16 and worse, than promised;
- 17 b) Whether the iPhone 4 was defective;
- 18 c) Whether Apple was negligent in the design, manufacturing, and distribution of the 19 iPhone 4;
- 20 d) Whether Apple’s representations amounted to an express warranty;
- 21 e) Whether Apple breached the warranty;
- 22 f) Whether Apple breached the implied warranty of merchantability;
- 23 g) Whether Apple breached the implied warranty of fitness for a particular purpose;
- 24 h) Whether Apple intentionally and/or negligently misrepresented material facts 25 relating to the character and quality of the iPhone 4;
- 26 i) Whether Apple failed to disclose material facts about limitations in the speed and 27 performance characteristics of the iPhone 4 to consumers;
- 28 j) Whether Apple forced Class members to pay unjust charges for the goods and services they were sold by Apple, as well as whether that failure violates statutory and common law prohibitions against such conduct;
- k) Whether Apple violated state consumer protection laws; and
- l) Whether Plaintiffs and the Class members are entitled to relief, and the nature of such relief.

Accordingly, commonality requirement is satisfied.

3. The Typicality Requirement is Met

1 Rule 23(a)(3) requires that “the claims or defenses of the representative parties [must be] 2 ... typical of the claims or defenses of the class.” “The test of typicality is whether other 3 members have the same or similar injury, whether the action is based on conduct which is not 4 unique to the named plaintiffs and whether other class members have been injured by the same 5 conduct.” Hanon v. Dataproducts Corp., 976 F.2d 497, 508 (9th Cir. 1992) (internal citations 6 omitted). “[U]nder the rule’s permissive standards, representative claims are ‘typical’ if they are 7 reasonably coextensive with those of absent class members; they need not be substantially 8 identical.” Hanlon, 150 F.3d at 1020.

9 Here, each proposed Class Representative experienced the Apple iPhone 4 signal 10 attenuation as a result of a uniform design defect and all share an interest in redressing those 11 claims with all proposed Class members. Thus, Plaintiffs believe their claims are typical of those 12 of the Settlement Class, and Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(a)(3) is met.

4. The Named Plaintiffs and Class Counsel Are Adequate Class Representatives

14 Finally, Rule 23(a)(4) and Rule 23(g) together require that the named plaintiff and 15 proposed class counsel be able to “fairly and adequately protect the interests of the class.” 16 “Resolution of two questions determines legal adequacy: (1) do the named plaintiffs and their 17 counsel have any conflicts of interest with other class members and (2) will the named plaintiffs 18 and their counsel prosecute the action vigorously on behalf of the class?” Hanlon, 150 F.3d at 19 1020.

20 Here, neither Plaintiffs nor their counsel have any interests antagonistic to the Settlement 21 Class. Furthermore, Plaintiffs and Co-Lead Counsel have vigorously prosecuted this action on 22 behalf of the Settlement Class, including filing and service of the lawsuits, self-organizing the 23 various cases and counsel, filing a Master Consolidated Complaint, filing initial disclosures, 24 initiating settlement negotiations with defense counsel, requesting confidential documents and 25 data from Apple, analyzing the documents and data Apple provided, and moving the action 26 forward to resolution. The attorneys who represent the Class Representatives are well-qualified 27
28

1 to serve as Class Counsel and indeed have handled similar nationwide high technology class 2 actions to successful resolution in the past. The qualifications and experience of counsel are set 3 forth in the Declarations of Ira P. Rothken, Stuart A. Davidson, Jennifer Sarnelli and Behram V.
4 Parekh, attached to the Declaration of Ira P. Rothken in Support of Motion for Final Approval of 5 Class Action Settlement (“Rothken Decl.”) as Exhibits A through E.

6 5. The Proposed Settlement Class Meets the Requirements of 7 Rule 23(b)(3)

8 Once the subsection (a) prerequisites are satisfied, Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 9 23(b)(3) provides that a class action can be maintained where the questions of law and fact 10 common to members of the class predominate over any questions affecting only individuals, and 11 the class action mechanism is superior to the other available methods for the fair and efficient 12 adjudication of the controversy. Fed. R. Civ. P 23(b)(3); Pierce v. County of Orange, 526 F.3d 13 1190, 1197 n.5 (9th Cir. 2008). Because a settlement is being proposed, the Court need not 14 consider manageability. See Amchem Prods., Inc. v. Windsor, 521 U.S. 591, 620 (1997) (citation 15 omitted) (“[c]onfronted with a request for settlement-only class certification, a district court need 16 not inquire whether the case, if tried, would present intractable management problems, for the 17 proposal is that there be no trial”).

18 The predominance inquiry looks to whether a proposed class is sufficiently cohesive to 19 warrant adjudication by representation. Id. at 623. Common issues predominate where a 20 common nucleus of facts and potential legal remedies dominate the litigation. See Chamberlan v.
21 Ford Motor Co., 402 F.3d 952, 962 (9th Cir. 2005). Here, Plaintiffs’ claims arise out of the same 22 set of operative facts and are premised on the same legal theories. For settlement purposes, where 23 the manageability of trying the case need not be considered, the predominance requirement is 24 satisfied.

25 In addition, a class action is superior to any other method available to fairly, adequately, 26 and efficiently resolve the Settlement Class members’ claims. Without a class action, most would 27 find litigation costs prohibitive, and if they did sue in large numbers, multiple individual actions 28 would be an inefficient use of the Court’s and parties’ resources. Accordingly, Plaintiffs believe 1 a class action is the superior method of adjudicating this controversy.

2 IV. CONCLUSION

3 After preliminary approval of this Settlement Class, Apple caused the Court-approved 4 notice — which constituted the best notice practicable under the circumstances, producing a very 5 low number of objectors and exclusions from this proposed Settlement – to be provide to the 6 Settlement Class. The proposed Settlement has and will continue to provide a tangible benefit to 7 Class Members. It was recommended by Co-Lead Counsel as being in the best interest of the 8 Settlement Class and the Honorable Daniel Weinstein also confirmed based on his years of 9 experience hat he believed the proposed Settlement was fair, reasonable and adequate. As such, 10 Plaintiffs respectfully request the Court grant final approval of the proposed Settlement.
11 Furthermore, the Settlement Class meets the Rule 23 requirements for class certification.
12 Consequently, the parties respectfully move this Court grant final certification of the Settlement 13 Class and issue an Order finally approving this proposed Settlement.

14 Respectfully submitted,
